

James Farmer, CORE Director, Bucknell Speaker

James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), will speak on "The Civil Rights Revolution in America" in a lecture at Bucknell University on Monday, October 4.

JAMES FARMER

Sponsored by the Bucknell Student Forum and the Equal Opportunities Committee, Mr. Farmer's address will be given at 8:30 p. m. Monday in the annex of Davis Gymnasium.

A national leader in the civil rights movement, Mr. Farmer holds a bachelor of science degree from Wiley College and a bachelor of divinity degree from Howard University. His address will include a discussion of the problems of racial equality in the United States and the ways and methods that are being used to meet the problem.

The lecture is open to the public.